Sarlink is a global brand of premium quality pelletized thermoplastic vulcanizates (TPVs). A specialist in developing and manufacturing high quality TPVs to offer customers the material properties they need, such as flexibility, durability and low compression set. Sarlink adds value by being a specialist in high quality TPV solutions and offering a support structure based on close partnership. Sarlink is a truly global company with production operations and laboratories in Leominster MA (USA) and Genk (Belgium), and sales/marketing and technical support offices in Southfield MI (USA), Leominster MA (USA), Sittard (The Netherlands), Shanghai (China) and Singapore.

APPLICATION DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER

Your key challenges

- Help to translate customer requirements into product specifications and acquire technical approvals at customers.
- Help to assess and initiate new product development requests.
- Assist R&D colleagues in project management and coordinates Quality Control, lab and testing activities for R&D colleagues.
- Help in project acquisition, play technical support role for colleagues in Marketing and Sales and support the technical assessment of new programs.
- Provide technical updates and inspire colleagues on your findings.
- Take ownership for feeding and maintaining parts of the knowledge base.
- Active use of various project tools.
- Support multiplication of successful product-application-technology combinations to other customers and/or segments.

Your profile

- Bachelor's degree or higher education level in Polymer Engineering or Mechanical Engineering.
- Comprehensive knowledge of plastics materials, polymer processing and applications.
- Comprehensive knowledge of troubleshooting and testing plastic materials.
- Basic knowledge of tool design, part design and design tools, (e.g. Mold Flow, FEA, AutoCAD and DOE).
- Proven social skills (English is a must), allowing you to build and maintain internal and external relations.
- Drive to produce results on time.
- Capability to work in stressful situations.
- Hands on way of working and ability to be self-propelling.
- Building and maintaining network of expertise.
- Travel is required.

The position carries a competitive salary package and excellent secondary benefits.
Starting date: as soon as possible.

Applications (in English) to be sent by e-mail to info@sarlink.com.
Applications will be treated in a confidential way.